WHY ZANZIBAR?

World Heritage has come until today almost untouched.

Zanzibar's name came from a Persian word Zengibar, "the coast of black people." The capital of this heavenly island which located 30 kilometers east of Tanzania is Stone Town. The city, which is on the UNESCO list of World Heritage, has come until today almost untouched.

In Stone Town which has labyrinth-like narrow streets adorned with peeled away colored stone houses, influence of Arab culture is intense. What is indispensable for stone houses that gave the town its name is carved wooden doors. The doors that blended with world's famous Indian, Arab and African culture and differ according to the ethnic origin of the inhabitants, make you feel like in a beautiful canvas.

One of the most enjoyable activities in Zanzibar today is to visit the spice gardens. You get to know hundreds of kinds of spice tree during a few hours of sightseeing so much so that your nose cannot smell and your tongue cannot taste the difference anymore. You witness the singing villagers climb to banana trees that stretch out into the sky faster than a monkey, you learn art from the villagers who make bracelets, necklaces, crowns for you from various leaves.

You won't miss white sandy beaches of Zanzibar, especially in the east coast, where many people do kitesurf, while many others enjoy sunbathing. And you will snorkel with hundreds of fishes and probably dolphins during Sandbank boat tour.
